601ST TANK DESTROYER BATTALION
APO 464 U. S. Army

4 February 1944

SUBJECT : Report of Operations for Period 22-31 January 1944.

TO : Commanding General, 3rd Infantry Division, APO #3 US Army.

a. Summary of Our Operations:

During the period 22-31 January 1944, the 601st Tank Destroyer Battalion, attached to 3rd Division, VI Corps, landed and assisted in establishment of beachhead vicinity ANZIO-NETTUNO, Italy, according to Operation "Shingle". The Battalion operated aggressively in close support of infantry units to which attached, engaged enemy infantry, machine gun nests, anti-tank guns, armored vehicles, and tanks at every opportunity. Indirect fire missions were conducted with excellent results in conjunction with 3rd Division Artillery. (See Annexes #1 and #2)

b. Summary of Enemy Operations:

During this period the German has shown that he can utilize hastily assembled units to effect a strong defense of his important lines of communication. Our landing on Red Beach south of NETTUNO was unopposed by any sizeable force and we proceeded inland for four miles on "D" day without encountering any enemy force. It was surprising to note the absence of mines, 88 guns, and German armor. After several days, the German plan of defense became evident. It used houses, ruins and the natural cover provided by canals, stream beds, and draws, as positions for strong points. Strong points often consisted of 5.0 or 7.5 cm AT guns complemented by MG's and riflemen. Frequently, the Boche would permit our forces to penetrate through this network of strong points and then fire upon them from the rear. Houses and, in CISTERNA DI LITTORIA, a tower and a steeple were used for OP's. At night 170 mm and 88 mm guns were brought up close to our front lines to harass installations in our rear. On two occasions harassing fire fell in the vicinity of our trains. The enemy has sniped at our M-10's on many occasions. Crews in M-10's operating in several areas had to keep well inside the TD at all times to avoid being hit by rifle fire. Two men were wounded by sniper fire when they raised themselves up in the turret to observe. On one occasion German riflemen penetrated two miles behind our lines at night, crossed the CANAL MUSEOLINI, fired at houses and vehicles and withdrew before daylight. Our M-10's were able to reduce German strong points by firing 3" A/C and HE delay ammunition into the houses and when the enemy attempted to flee, he was cut down by 3" HE with fuze quick and .50 cal MG fire.

c. Situation at End of Period:

The Battalion at end of period was engaged in stiff action south of CISTERNA, Italy, providing close support for attacking infantry units and defending the Division front against threat by armor.

d. Status of Personnel and Materiel:

Excellent.

e. Comments and Lessons Learned:

1. M-8 Scout Cars are unsuitable for cross-country reconnaissance on beachhead due to poor flotation on marshy ground.

2. Shell 3" APC - BDF produced excellent results.

3. M-10's are unsuitable for close support of infantry while under enemy small-arms fire due to lack of vision slits in turret for tank commander. Recommend turret periscope.

4. Shaft of turret traversing mechanism on M-10 has broken on several occasions due to structural weakness.

5. Smooth rubber block tread of M-10 has proven itself unsatisfactory for any type of cross country movement. Recommend issue of steel or rubber chevron tread.

6. Recommend immediate issue of "Tiny Tim" radio generator for all M-10's. On several occasions we have almost lost M-10's through enemy action after battery failure, despite constant motor charging during radio operations.

7. If TD's are to be used as assault guns, recommend a coaxial .50 cal MG mounted in turret facing forward.

x. The planning and mounting operation "Shingle" was based on rapid displacement of the Battalion once the landing was effected. Space on ten ships was used, carrying 83 vehicles and 373 EM and Officers. 3 LCT's carried 3 Platoons of TD's and 3 sections of Reconnaissance Company. 6 of the 7 LST's carried 6 Platoons of TD's. Other vehicles of the Battalion were carried on the 7th LST. This dispersion allowed protection from complete loss and early landing of some elements. Units converged by Platoon on previously map-reconnoitered firing positions, rather than on dewaterproofing assembly areas, which were found to be unnecessary.
