

Dr. McDonald: Confidence Personified

New Mayor Holds Hopes Of Cohoes

By JIM DEARBORN
(Last of a Series)

If the vitality and intense energy of the McDonald family can possibly be compressed and expressed in a single term, that term must be "active."

Surrounded by an adoring family of charming, attractive and intelligent women, Dr. James E. McDonald's household spans four generations, ranging in age from 2 to 82.

Dr. McDonald, a handsome, lively 54, sports a shock of white hair and pair of steel-blue, piercing eyes. His 155 pounds rides easily on a 5-foot, 10-inch frame, creating a lithe, athletic figure.

Although soft-spoken, the doctor's spirited oration during the election campaign was undoubtedly responsible for rallying many voters to the Citizens Party cause.

Seemingly a natural vote-getter, Dr. McDonald spiced many of his bitter administrative attacks with humor and

NEW FIRST FAMILY—Cohoes' new first family ranges in age from 2 to 82 and spans four generations of McDonalds. The city's mayor-elect, Dr. James E. McDonald, poses with his feminine counterparts. Left to right are Mrs. Frances Burgey, Mrs. McDonald's mother; two-year-old Farrell Lynn, a granddaughter; Dr. McDonald and his wife, Virginia, and their charming daughter-in-law, Mrs. Gail Gilcrest McDonald.